

NEW NOTE TO GERMANY MAY BE AN ULTIMATUM IS WASHINGTON REPORT

VICES FROM OFFICIAL QUARTERS INDICATE U. S. WILL STATE ITS COURSE IF DEMANDS ARE NOT MET.

BEGIN WORK ON REPLY

Secretary Lansing and President Wilson Will Each Outline Their Ideas Before Arranging for a Conference.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, July 12.—The situation between Germany and the United States has taken on such a serious and critical character that the policy of the American government will require lengthy and deliberate consideration that it may have the firmness which the circumstances require.

Each to Work Out Plan.

This was the statement made today in high official quarters. Secretary Lansing, after taking several days to examine the German reply, may go to Cornish, N. H., after all to confer with President Wilson. The original plan, it was explained, was for the President and Mr. Lansing to confer and then have the secretary of state draft a note to be submitted to the cabinet on the president's return to Washington. Now the belief is that the president and Mr. Lansing working independently will prepare memoranda and confer after their ideas have matured. A definite announcement is expected later whether Mr. Lansing will go to Cornish.

COUNT VON BERNSTORFF, German ambassador, has asked Secretary Lansing if he wishes to see him and the secretary is understood to have replied that he does, after he has carefully examined the situation. The ambassador is seeking information in the attitude of the German government toward the German reply.

New Note an Ultimatum.
Secretary Lansing has begun work on a draft of a reply to Germany, but has not given anyone the slightest inkling of his views. Such intimations, however, as have been received from the White House as well as the state department point to the framing of a policy which will expose even more emphatically than before the views of the United States and the belief is growing that the next note may include some idea of the intentions of the American government if its demands are not met. The general comment in executive quarters today was that the next American note would define the position of the United States even more clearly so that Germany's subsequent attitude would definitely determine whether diplomatic relations were to be continued.

USE EASTERN BOATS TO CARRY RUSSIANS

Indo-China Steamers Are Carrying Slaves From Vladivostok to Dardanelles.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Berlin, July 12.—At the "horse market" established by the government, where animals are offered for sale to the army, prices of late have gone up so far that many of the most valuable animals have not been bought. Many owners appear also to be holding back their horses in the hope of still higher prices.

The government is avoiding until the last possible moment the use of the usual argument of price extraction—confiscation. It is firmly predicted, however, that this will be necessary if horse owners do not come to reason and do not offer their animals at prices somewhere near commensurate with the value of the horses.

Knocked Down Attempting

Rev. W. A. Goebel sustained painful injuries, including a lacerated face and a bruised foot in an automobile accident in front of the McNamara hardware store at one o'clock today. Rev. Goebel had been in the store and on cranking his machine had the motor "die" and he neglected to put on the brakes, lessening the gear in low speed. On crashing the machine down the street, Rev. Goebel ended being knocked down and intended to jump into the car as it passed him. While in the act of jumping to the running board, a passing machine brushed him, knocking him to the street, cutting a gash about his face and injuring his foot. The car was moving slowly toward the street toward Baker's drug store and stopped by a policeman. A physician was called to the residence of Rev. Goebel to dress the wounds.

DEFEAT OF CENTRAL BOARD PLAN REACTS UPON PROGRESSIVES

Passage of Staudenmayer Substitute

tion as Champion of Rural Schools.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., July 12.—When the central board of education bill went down to defeat in the senate last week, Governor E. L. Philipp won the greatest victory of his political career and the ultras suffered their most disastrous reverse.

A dispatch from Austrian headquarters in Galicia explains the apparent pull in the Austro-German advance by Lemburg as the objective of the present campaign with the idea of establishing themselves in strong defensive positions to the northward in order to use part of their troops elsewhere.

It is claimed that this has been accomplished by establishing lines along the rivers Pisa and Zita Lipa and the Krasnik ridge. It is further explained that the Austrians proceeded beyond Krasnik, but encountering unopposed opposition retired on the positions originally selected. Where they have resisted all further Russian attacks.

RACEWAY DRAGGED FOR BODY OF MAN THOUGHT A SUICIDE

Mystery Surrounds Disappearance of Man Seen Walking Across Platform to Water Grates Sunday Afternoon.

Either a suicide or drowning accident, with an element of mystery, from all indications, is being investigated by the police department. Policemen and firemen today dragged the race near the Blodgett mill on North River street for the body of a well dressed man, who, it is believed, was drowned Sunday afternoon. No trace had been found of the body supposed to be in the race after the police had dragged all morning and the firemen had searched for three hours Sunday afternoon. An attempt was made this afternoon to remove the drift-wood collected before the grates, which prevents a thorough dragging.

Contradictory as this may seem in view of the facts, nevertheless it is the expressed opinion of the shrewdest political observers here at the capitol, "I'm willing right now to place bets for the next election in case the governor decides to run," is the way one man expressed himself.

"They can't stop him, for the past week has given him the strongest political issue that a candidate ever had in this state. It's an issue that can't be beat, for it is the issue of better education for all the people as against higher education for a selected few. The governor is today recognized as the champion of the rural schools and the high-browed ultras will have the time of their lives to make any kind of a showing."

Action Hurts Progressives.
This interview perhaps explains fully the first statement. At any rate, it is certain that the defeat of the Philipp central board of education bill did not hurt the governor. And it is certain that it did hurt the ultras most as seriously. They evidently recognize this fact after Staudenmayer substitute bill had been introduced to the finance committee there was a fairly considerable in the progressive ranks, many hurried conferences, and already there are indications that these same ultras, who by their votes killed the governor's bill and substituted the normal school-university idea as embodied in Staudenmayer's measure, want to reconsider their action. It was a smooth political game that was played and it might have been all right but the manipulators for Running with another man to the grates, Ott found that the hat was caught in the race and pulled down. Ott ran to the fire station and Chief H. G. Klein was informed of the circumstances. A number of the firemen hurried to the race with grapple hooks and pike poles and immediately dragged the bottom of the grates, which extend fifteen or eighteen feet in the water. The hat was secured by Chief Klein and may send some aid to solving the mystery. There was no current in the water, the power being shut off on Sunday and the man dropped into the water on the north side of the grates, he would have been held against the bars.

Because of so much debris and drift-wood at the bottom there was not much chance of using the grapple hooks and the pike poles were used on both sides of the grate. If the man fell into the race on the south side of the grate, he might have been carried under the mill building toward the water wheels.

Several theories are advanced by those who have investigated the case. Ott was too far away from the Blodgett building to obtain a description of the man other than he was attired in light suit and Panama hat. One theory is that the man in walking across the platform lost his hat in the race and in attempting to reach it with a stick fell into the water among the driftwood. The other is that he intended suicide and if so, his body became embedded in the piles of drift-wood.

It did not take Ott long to reach the scene and when he arrived there were no signs of the man but his hat.

The garment is of a fine quality, closely woven Panama, telescope shape with a black band. When Chief Klein picked the hat up from a rowboat, the sweatband showed perspiration and the inside had not been touched by the water. It is size seven and had a thin rubber beneath the band for sweat pads. Numerous marks of the store were barely visible.

It is barely possible that on losing the hat from a gust of wind, the unknown man did not venture to obtain it, but went back across the platform on the east side and down the tracks. If he had gone across to the west side, Ott could not have avoided seeing him. From the indications that the man was nervous in walking the sidewalk, the police express a belief that the mystery is a suicide.

Munition Ships.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, July 12.—Navy department officials today awaited responses from the British steamships Hoththead and Baron Napier, laden with munitions for the British army and now off the South Atlantic coast, to a warning wireless to them to watch out for bombs in the hold. Both vessels sailed from New Orleans July 9, the Hoththead for Dublin and Belfast via Norfolk and the Baron Napier direct for Avonmouth.

Newspaper Gets Letter.

The warning was flashed out broadcast over the sea from the Arlington station last night, following a telegram from Secretary Daniels of a newspaper from New Orleans newspaper stating that a letter to that paper from a person who signed himself "Pierce" indicated that explosives had been placed aboard the two vessels.

The writer of the letter also declared his intention of killing J. P. Morgan and Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, British ambassador, and to complete the work of Erich Muecker, who committed suicide recently after wounding Mr. Morgan and with him he says he had formed a partnership in an effort to keep the United States out of the war.

Start Investigation.

New York, July 12.—An investigation of the alleged conspiracy to place bombs on board steamships leaving here, loaded with war munitions for the allies, was in progress today. Conference police officials, agents of the federal government and privately employed by the steamship companies, was called to consider means of co-operation to prevent the planting of any more bombs on board steamships in New York harbor.

AWAIT DEVELOPMENTS

Washington Has No Thought of Rec-visional Government Is Assured.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, July 12.—Brief dispatches reached the state department from Mexico City dated before the occupation of the capital by Carranza forces describing food conditions as almost intolerable, but officials believed the situation had been relieved already by the change of authority or would be remedied as soon as transportation with Vera Cruz was resumed.

No Thought of Recognition.

State department officials, when asked today whether the occupation of Mexico City by Carranza would affect the question of recognition, declared no definite consideration had been given to the subject. They said, however, that it always seemed more favorable for recognition when one party in the conflict becomes dominant. The American government has been waiting for many months for one of the factions to get military supremacy and set up a provisional government giving promise of stability. The United States now will watch carefully the attitude and policy of the Carranza authorities in Mexico City, but there will be no decision, it is believed, for some time as a result of the change of power.

Heretofore possession of Mexico City has not been regarded of much importance by officials because of the frequent changes in authority, but there are now indications that if Gen. Carranza can better his position by further acquisition of territory north of the capital and reopen roads to the interior, the American government will be more inclined to recognize him.

Prevent a Bombardment.

Guaymas, Mex., (bulletin by radio to San Diego, July 12)—Guaymas, July 11.—A general bombardment of Guaymas by the Carranza gunboat Guerrero, planned for Monday has been prevented. After a strong protest by visiting bishops and Bishop

Famed for Conservatism.

The most Reverend James Edward Quigley, archbishop of Chicago, was honored as a prominent logician, a scholar and a linguist, and one of the most uncontentious and conservative prelates of the Catholic church in the United States.

He was born in Oshawa, Ontario, Canada, in 1854. While an infant his parents moved to Lima, Peru, and when he was three years old in the family came to New York. He was the eldest son of a large family, and a relative, Rev. Edward Quigley, of Buffalo, took a great interest in him and directed his education from his first school days.

Under the direction of the Christian Brothers, at Niagara University, he pursued his studies at St. Joseph College, Buffalo. From there he went to University of Innsbruck, Austria, and completed his student career in Rome at the College of the Propaganda, the first papal delegate to the United States, was one of his instructors. There he received the degree of Doctor of Divinity.

At one time he came near diverting his career in the church. In 1878 he passed with highest honors an examination for Novitiate but yielded to the advice of his friends and decided to enter the priesthood.

In 1879 he was ordained priest at Rome by Cardinal Lavelletta. The young priest at once returned to the United States and was assigned to active work at Attica, New York. He was there only a short time when he was made rector of St. Joseph's cathedral in Buffalo, New York, where he remained for many years.

He succeeded to the pastorate and irremovable rectorship at St. Bridget's church, Buffalo, in 1896, after the death of the vicar-general of the diocese. After the death of Bishop Ryan of Buffalo, in the same year, he was chosen his successor. The following year he was consecrated bishop of Buffalo.

He was ordained archbishop of Chicago Jan. 8, 1903, succeeding Patrick A. Feehan. In assuming this responsibility he had charge of 300 parishes, 13 colleges and academies, 6 orphan asylums, 16 hospitals, one theological seminary, two universities and several convents and monasteries. He always took a deep interest in the causes of church extension and education.

RAIN HALTS BALL GAMES IN COMMERCIAL LEAGUE

Although only three innings had been played, the rain spoiled one of the prettiest baseball games played this season in the Commercial league, Saturday afternoon, when it prevented the "Y" and "Rails" from finishing their two fast at the fair grounds.

Both teams were hitting .300 per cent class. The score stood 4 to 3 in favor of the "Rails" when the umpire called the contest, but the score does not tell the story of the short battle. The "Y" slingers had just about "found" Fleming, and had started a whirlwind rally when the weather man saw fit to stop the game.

"Doc" Richards pitched a tight ball for the Christians, allowing only three hits, while the N. M.
C. A. had already pounded Fleming for six pretty ones. The game was called off and will probably be played later in the season with the other postponed games. However, this will be decided at the regular meeting of the managers and captains at the Y.

M. C. A. tomorrow at 7 P. M.

Both teams are in the race for the championship. Both the Lewis company and the "Pen" have been showing exceptional class in the last few games, and they are not to be disregarded as minor league contenders.

"Miss" Arabella Cinch.

The games are becoming popular with the fans, and the one pleasing feature is the fact that, with all of the wrangling and disputing, there is a friendly feeling that holds the teams together and prevails in every contest. No team has intentionally put in more "outsiders" than is allowed and every game is played clean and sportsmanlike.

COMMUNITY SERVICE IS AMERICA'S NEED

PROF. GRAHAM TAYLOR SEES NATION'S SALVATION IN CON-NECTING DETACHED ELEMENTS.

BIG SUNDAY AUDIENCES

Chautauqua Tent Filled to Capacity for Afternoon and Evening Sessions—Jubilee Singers Win Favor.

Community service, defined as the process of connecting up detached elements whether individuals, families, groups or nationalities, with that which is best in American life, will be the salvation of the nation according to Dr. Graham Taylor of Chicago Commons, who addressed
1,200 persons at the Janevian Chautaqua Sunday afternoon. Dr. Taylor spoke for an hour and a half elaborating upon his theme and illustrating his ideas with actual experiences which he has enjoyed in his social community activities.

Sunday was a big day at the Chautaqua. There were two large audiences, afternoon and evening, filling the tent to capacity. It was an ideal Chautauqua day and all who enjoyed the fine programs were impressed with the thought that they were taking a part in one of the finest community enterprises which the city has ever undertaken.

Dr. Taylor delivered two masterful lectures. His evening topic was "Mobilization for Peace," and was a striking address with the present situation in Europe as its inspiration.
The speaker was in Paris at the time war was declared and gained some interesting first hand information of the situation.

Jubilee Singers Please.

Music for both sessions of the day was furnished by the Dixie Jubilee singers and was thoroughly enjoyed and appreciated. In the afternoon they sang old-fashioned negro campmeeting selections including such classical pieces as "Roll Jordan, Roll," and "Brother You Ought to be a Minister."

The evening program was a concert of more popular selections sung with all the swing and the volume and expression of which high class colored singers are capable.
Every member of the quartet, consisting of two men and two women, possessed an excellent voice equally as good as solo work as in the quartet numbers. The tenor gave readings which pleased his audience.

"Our industrial machinery which makes possible the detached man, the man without a home, without a job, who drifts here, there and everywhere, in other words the system which makes possible the tramp, is a menace to our civilization," said
Dr. Taylor in his afternoon lecture.

He went on to show that this detached man is a danger which reaches deep down into our national life and undermining its strength. Even a greater menace is the detached woman whose problem usually becomes that of the white slave and the tenderloin.

Besides the detached individual there is the detached family, the family without connections of any lasting sort which lives in a rented room, which moves every month, whose children do not go to school until forced to by the truant officer, and which has no connection with church or society.

Then there is the detached nationality. Dr. Taylor spoke in illustration of this element of a company of Hungarians that held meetings at the Commons last fall and winter. Suddenly they failed to report and were brought out the fact that they had scattered across the sea to fight for what they did not, simply because they were thrown out of employment here. Thousands of detached elements are attaching themselves to something vital and important in out of national life, he said.

Arrivals for the week are estimated at 42,000 cattle, 130,000 sheep and 70,000 sheep, against 41,413 cattle, 111,
557 hogs and 107,182 sheep cor-

JANESEVILLE RED SOX BEAT BELoit OLYMPICS

The JANESEVILLE Red Sox, attired in their spick and span new suits, won their ninth straight game Sunday afternoon at Test's park, beating the Beloit Olympics by the score of six to three. For the first five innings both teams battled on even terms with the score 0 to 0. Kakuske was pitching great ball for the Sox and fanned thirteen batters. Heavy hitting in the form of three-baggers by Kakuske and Everson and a double by Marshall turned the tide for the JANESEVILLE nine. O'Dell, pitching for the Olympics, fanned eight.

FRANK FARMER CLASHES WITH JIMMY CLABBY.

SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.

Oshkosh, Wis., July 12.—Frank Farmer, the young middleweight who has succeeded Eddie McGahey as the town idol here, will meet Jimmy Clabby, the "Hammond Whale" in a ten round bout at Armory B tonight. Many of Farmer's friends believe a mistake was made in matching him with the man of Clabby's caliber before he had gained more experience, but others are sure that Farmer can not stop the local boy in his mites of fighting, while Farmer has an excellent chance of landing a haymaker in that period. They figure that it will require many Clabby blows to slow up their man, and but one punch from Farmer to drop Clabby. Farmer's knockout of Ned Carpenter, a 199 pounder, in two rounds has made him a big favorite around here.

Over Two Thousand Witness Pitchers' Duel Between Tillie and Bob Fucik.

ODDIES of hard luck and the failure of the "break" to come at the right time and the right way, caused defeat to the JANESEVILLE Cardinals Sunday afternoon when the Beloit F. M. A. A. nine defeated the JANESEVILLE squad after an air-tight game by the score of 2 to 1 at the Park Association diamond. Our men may lost the game when Helot stamped a two run home across, the direct result of the lack of brain work on the part of "Push" Miller in handling a ducky hit in the third inning.

Cicotte handled the mound job in the second game, which the Sox had an easy time copping by the score of 13 to 5. The White Hose lambasted three of the Senator's best hurlers, and in all forty-live hits were made during the long day, and the Sox got twenty-six of them. Eddie Collins peeled off six singles and Buck Weaver annexed five safe blows.

New York July 12.—By breaking even with Washington Sunday in a double header slugfest, the Sox bolstered up their batting averages and gained a bit of ground in the mid pennant race. The Senators won the first game 3 to 2, when they drove Faber from the slab inside of four rounds and then hit Bend hard. Tex Russell stopped them and the Sox fought hard to come from an early lead. Gallia tumbled the Sox with ease and although they hit him hard, he was effective in the pinches.

SIT TIGHT.
Students of the answer of Germany to the second note of President Wilson are apparently of the opinion that it will prove unsatisfactory to the administration in so much as it breathes an atmosphere of defiance to the United States and reiterates the imperial doctrine of Germany that anything done by orders of that government is right, regardless of how much it infringes upon the personal rights of any neutral nation. Of course the administration has not yet spoken. In fact the note, except for advance dispatches purporting to tell its contents, has been given careful consideration, consequently the advance opinions expressed may be incorrect. However, in general tone, it is certain that it does not decide any of the questions under discussion or make any guaranty of the future and consequently must prove unsatisfactory.

In fact the press of the country are almost united in expressing their disapproval in no measured terms. The German press, on the other hand, feel apparently satisfied, and the pro-German press of this country follow the lead of their brethren across the water and extoll its virtues. Of course this note is merely an incident but still it shows the opinion of this country that, big as we are, great as we imagine ourselves to be, we are merely pawns in the great war game of Germany and really not worth any more consideration, if as much, as Switzerland, who stands armed at their doorway to Italy to insist upon protection of the lives and property of its subjects.

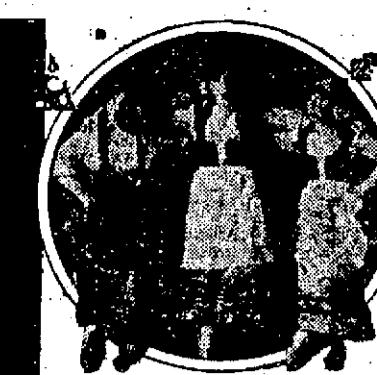

However, now is the time for the people of this country to sit tight and wait for the word of the president. No matter whether they differ with him politically or not, he is the president and as such he is the official mouthpiece of this nation. It is not time for bickerings. It is not time for recantations of what should be done and what should not be done. We must trust in the sagacity of the head of our national government, confident that our interests will be safeguarded and the dignity of the United States upheld in a proper and fitting manner.

Jingolists will have an opportunity to chant on the theme, "I told you so." Thank fortune the Jingolists does not really express public opinion and the American people are not of the excitable Latin disposition to fly off at a tangent if anything displeases us. We are the melting pot of the world. All the nations of Europe have sent their peoples to us to become citizens and while even unto the second and third generation many have retained their distinctions in general, they have become assimilated with the spirit of this country and we are one people without any hyphenated differences.

Have confidence in the president and his final decision on this much-mooted question, confident that all will be right in the end and the best interests of the nation cared for as it should be.

THE SEAMEN'S BILL.

Just as predicted the La Follette seamen's bill is about to drive the American shipowners out of existence and the largest lines will be found under English registry as soon as it becomes effective. One would have thought after having experimented with Wisconsin affairs, harassed the railroads, on the plea of reform that the national government would have been a trifle shy of his sudden interest in the maritime affairs which could certainly mean nothing but mischief in the end. It was expected that the Pacific shipping interest would be hit first and the announcement that at least one big company will transfer its ships to the English flag with its terminus at Vancouver, merely makes one guess if the same will not be true on the Atlantic and the trans-Atlantic trade transferred from Boston and New York to Montreal, Quebec or Halifax, Wisconsin is now trying to undo some of the damage that was inflicted by this same statesman upon Badger state interests so it is not surprising to learn that it is broadly hinted at the White House that the president will ask congress at its next session to repeal the more important provisions of the seamen's bill. When congress passed that measure, Secretary Redfield and Assistant Secretary Sweet, both democrats, went to the White House and begged President Wilson to veto the bill. They warned him of what would happen, told him no legislation more injurious to American shipping and, in the end, to American seamen could be passed, and presented facts and figures to sustain their contentions. The president waved them aside and signed the bill. Now that the Pacific Mail Steamship vessels have been driven from the trans-Pacific trade and the Dollar Line ships have sought British registry, and it is evident that no trans-oceanic line can live under this law, the president will ask congress to amend it. In other words, now that the horse has been stolen, he will ask congress to lock the barn door.

Fair associations, celebration committees, in fact every commercial organizations seeking to boost some special interests on individual days in their communities have in vain asked railroads for special rates, excursions in fact, to help swell the crowds of visitors to their respective towns. This was the custom in the past, but since the two cent fare went into effect it can be accomplished by the railroads. This fact was brought out at the hearing in Chicago on the western passenger car rate hearing by one of the railroad officials on the stand. He also added that the reduced rates of travel had not materially increased the train travel—another important fact. The railroads should be given the right to charge at least a living rate for their transportation and it is all poppycock to say that by law they must only charge two cents and then put other almost prohibitive legislation against their interests and expect them to continue the kind of service the modern traveler demands. The two cent fare bill was killed in the present legislature, but the question will be brought up before the state railroad rate commission and it is to be hoped these gentlemen will see the legality of the claims made and grant the increase.

Mexico needs food more urgently than it needs advice at present and it is now certain the "watchful waiting" policy did not have the desired effect upon a people who do not want to listen to reason. The question is being asked, "Who is this mysterious Col. House upon whom the president places so much dependence?" Pretty soon it will be like the old riddle, "Who hit Billy Patterson?" or "How old is Ann?" Meantime the colonel is quoted frequently in dispatches and must be a most important personage.

Wasting the taxpayers' money by senseless appropriations by the bi-annual legislature is evidently to be a thing of the past, at least as far as Governor Philipp is concerned. He means business and has a pruning knife on hand for any senseless award of a few thousands for this or that senselessfad that a normal or a state institution wishes to experiment with.

CHAUTAUQUA CROWDS NUMBER THOUSANDS

OVER THREE THOUSAND PEOPLE ATTEND SESSIONS SATURDAY AND YESTERDAY.

TUESDAY IS BIG DAY

Board Met This Morning to Lay Plans for 1916—Junior Chautauqua Started Sunday Afternoon.

At a meeting of the Janesville Chautauqua association, held this morning in Secretary Pariseau's office, an official count as to the attendance at the chautauqua Saturday and Sunday was made, three thousand one hundred and twenty-four people having paid admission to the four entertainments thus far. This is a record number as compared to the official count of past years. Saturday afternoon, despite the rain, 302 people attended, with 487 present at night. Yesterday afternoon, 1,235 were present with 1,100 tickets taken in last evening.

Plans for holding a chautauqua in 1916 were laid at the meeting today and taken under consideration. The Lincoln management will on Wednesday present to the Janesville association and to the auditors, their proposition for next year.

Junior Chautauqua.

Because of the large audience yesterday afternoon, the junior chautauqua was commenced to take care of the restless children, who generally annoy the speakers and who would rather be roaming about. Miss Cullison, in charge, took ninety-six children yesterday into the neighboring buildings and told them interesting stories. Over a hundred youngsters attended the junior chautauqua this morning.

Traffic Taken Care Of.

The police are meeting with success in taking care of the traffic at the grounds. The east side of Washington avenue is left clear, while the west side is used as a parking place with the plus of ground to the north of the big park. The street car company is running extra cars to the grounds, giving the public excellent facilities to and from the grounds.

Rugs to be used in various ways have been donated to the management by J. M. Bostwick and sons, while Edward Amerpohl has generously donated plants, etc. Fresh drinking water, by means of the bubbler system, is available at all times, and is being used extensively by the crowds.

Today's Program.

The crayon artist and cartoonist, Pitt Parker, appeared this afternoon in a crayon recital, that was pleasing to the large audience that assembled.

The program was commenced with an entertainment by the Arden Drama Players, who furnished an excellent program.

Tonight, Pitt Parker will begin the program with a cartoon lecture, to be followed by the presentation of "The Taming of the Shrew" by the famous Arden Players. The beautiful costumes used in this Shakespearean play, and the strong lines that are read, are features of this unique characterization.

Tuesday Big Day.

Readings that are enjoyed all over the country will be one of the big features on Tuesday's big day program. These readings will be given by Jean S. MacDonald, who is Scotch-Irish-Canadian by birth, and full of wit and humor. She explains her mission in life as being "The minister of fun." She will render several short readings in the afternoon, and will take charge of the second part of the evening program.

There will be an interesting address tomorrow afternoon by Hon. William E. Mason, a former senator from Illinois, on the topic, "Presidents I Have Met." Hon. Mason is a very effective speaker and tells of many of his own personal experiences when taking up the above subject.

The musical feature for the day will be given by Blane's chautauqua band, a most complete musical organization, rendering solos, duets and quartets. There are twelve members in this company, all possessing a marked degree of talent. In all, tomorrow's program offers exceptional oratorical and musical talent, some of the best to be heard at this 1916 chautauqua. The largest audience is expected on Tuesday, the big day.

CHICAGO MAN FINED SMALL AMOUNT TODAY

Julius Gills Fined Five Dollars and Cost in Municipal Court This Morning.

Five dollars and costs, the total amounting to $7.40, was the fine taxed on Julius Gills of Chicago, when Gills appeared in the municipal court through his attorney, E. H. Peterson, and entered a plea of guilty to the city charge of speeding. The amount was paid.

Gills was arrested on June 20th by Patrolman Fred Albright, for going around the Main and Milwaukee street corner at an excessive rate of speed, one other speeder's case, that of John Stark, who was found guilty by a five man jury last week, and who was granted a ten-day stay of execution, is still on the municipal court records.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. S. Jennie Rider.

Mrs. S. Jennie Rider, for many years a resident of this city, but later of Pasadena, California, expired at her home, 185 Penn street, Pasadena, on Sunday, June the 20th, after an illness lasting for several months.

She is survived by her husband, Albert Rider, and two sons, Lewis L. and Floyd A. Rider, all of Pasadena.

GEORGE B. RODD DEAD AFTER LONG SICKNESS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Whitewater, July 12.—The funeral of L. E. Hawes yesterday afternoon was largely attended. Mr. Hawes was born August 14, 1829, in Chautauqua county, N. Y. He came with his parents at a very early day to Walworth county, cleared land and was

DON'T BURY THE HATCHET.

To blaze out and demand an explanation when anyone hurts you or treats you unjustly may not be an ideal way to act.

But it seems to me it is much better and healthier than to bury the hurt in your own heart and let it fester.

It's a fine thing to bury the hatchet if you don't bury it in soil where it will take root and raise a crop of silent malice and resentment.

A Blind Absence of the Mind.

In a medical article on both sides caused by mental and spiritual disturbances, I read the other day a most interesting story of a man who had come to the verge of insanity through what might well be called a blind absence of the mind.

His wife had a habit of saying sharp things to him. He was one of those quiet men who hate recriminations and family brawls more than anything in the world. In order to avoid such scenes, he held his peace. He never said anything but he thought a great deal. All the sharp things that he didn't answer were buried in his heart and festered there. Finally he came almost to hate his wife, and this hidden hatred continually tormented his whole life. He was on the verge of insanity when the doctor discovered the trouble, and advised him to make a clean breast of things to his wife.

Seems More Like a Woman.

It is difficult for me to imagine a man doing a thing like that. It seems much more like a woman than a man. Man's natural instinct is to resent anything but he doesn't like promptly and vigorously. It seems more what would happen to a woman than it can't help wondering if the doctor may not have reversed the sexes to make his patient's incognito safer.

However, that's a side issue. The point I wanted to emphasize is the harm that can be done by thrusting grievances upon one, aside one to fester.

Put It Out of Your Mind.

Of course if you can forgive an unkindness or injustice in silence, put it out of your mind and forget it, that's the finest and healthiest way to treat it. But you must be sure to thrust it out of your mind, not down into it, and it takes pretty big person to do that.

What the doctor has an abscess to treat he heals it if he can, operates on poison the system.

Heal your resentment if you can, operate on it by having it out with the offender if you must; but don't cover it up and leave it to poison your heart and mind.

Glimpses of Married Life

By MRS. DIA LEONARD

"When we get our inheritance," said Nell with an air, "we'll build a house, if we stay here, and have all the modern conveniences."

"If we stay here!" echoed Dick.

"Had you planned to have a retiree and live on the interest of the money? Oh, Nell, that's a good one."

"Well, of course that would depend on how much we get," Nell looked embarrassed.

"That would make no difference to me. I love my world and should never think of leaving it; if I do, I've no idea the sum will be large."

"I suppose you would have no objection to owing a pretty modern home," Nell eyed him keenly.

Certainly not; but how could we have modern conveniences in a town that has no water works, no sewer, no electric plant, no telephone?"

"That's easy," said Nell in a lofty tone. "Have your own lighting plant and a big electric with a force pump in the cellar."

"I think for a little woman who prides herself on being economical, you are laying out an expensive program don't you? My plan would be to put the money out at interest and have something to fall back on in case of sickness or reverses of any kind."

"Well, a lovely home would be an asset, I should think, and it would be something to enjoy every day as we lived along. That's what I believe in. Besides, there's the saving on rent."

You forgot the interest on the money invested. That would pay the rent and more, if you build up a house as you plan. Dick puffed his cigar with the air of one who has taken high ground and proposes to maintain it."

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May Be Addressed To Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson. A few weeks ago I read a letter in your column written by "Oscar." Your reply was splendid and suggestive. Like you, I wonder if Oscar is worthy of the woman he desires for a wife. I trust you will give me space to express my opinion of Oscar and other men like him.

I think he is thoroughly selfish. His sole thought in seeking a wife is to get one who will constantly drudge, stay at home all the time, have no nice clothes and no recreation. In other words, he wishes to marry a good, virtuous woman to be his slave. I think there are no sensible women who would give such a man a second thought. I am a worker; I possess all the "accomplishments" he mentions in his letter, but, believe me, I would not marry such a man if he were the last one left on earth. A man who marries a woman for her money, one who marries a woman to support him, and one who is a slave driver, all belong to the same class. It is a man's business to support the woman he marries and not expect her to support him, and I think it is a small specimen of a man who compels or even allows his wife to take in sewing, washing, etc., shortly after they are married. Of course, verses often come after marriage, then a wife should be a helpmate in keeping the wolf from the door, but the man who marries with the intention of having his wife for a slave in the home deserves censure. Too many men expect their wives to be strictly virtuous while they, the men, have gone the limit and kept it after marriage. I have more respect for a man who marries a "woman from the street" of his own class than the one who marries a pure woman while he has "gone the pace." Consistency, thou art a jewel. I hope Oscar may read this and think it over, if you consider it worthy of publication.

NELLIE
Thank you, Nellie, for the interest you have shown in the column.

overcome if we but try. I am a Christian girl and I have tried to live a life that would be worthy of such a man's love. Do you think I will ever marry?

Will you kindly allow me to congratulate that young man for his good common sense in attempting to find a REAL WOMAN for a wife? Thank you. WAITING JOEY.

There may be perfect men, but I am afraid they are as scarce as perfect women. Unless you insist upon having an angel with wings I see no reason why you should not marry.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl, nineteen years old, and have been going with a boy friend a year older than myself. I went with him almost a year and then he stopped coming. I have met him on the streets a number of times, and he is always very nice. He talks just as he always used to, but he never tries to explain why he stopped coming. He has been to our house a number of times when I was not home. He always asked about me, and about how I am getting along in my work. I am studying to be a nurse, and he is trying his way through college. Do you think he cares any for me? I do not know of anything I have done or said that would keep him from coming to our house. It was my birthday a few months ago and he sent me a birthday card. It will be his birthday in a few weeks. Do you think it would be all right for me to send him a birthday card, and also my sister, as she knows the boy very well?

I do not believe the boy cares especially for you, dear. If he did, he would certainly come to see you. It will be all right, however, for you and your sister to send one birthday card, to which you both sign your meal, let stand five minutes; add salt, and flour sifted with remaining ingredients; add yolk of egg, beaten butter and white of egg beaten stiff.

Walton Sandwiches — Four slices cooked bacon, four sweet pickles, two hard-boiled eggs; put through meat grinder; mix thoroughly and spread between thin slices of bread. These are excellent for a fisherman's basket as they keep good long way. Very good with the bread.

Quick Beef Stew — Wipe meat cut in cubes, sprinkle with salt and pepper and brown bread in fried fat; put in kettle or casserole and cover with boiling water which has first rinsed the frying pan. Boil five minutes and turn down fire. If you have any leftover vegetables and do not care to cook fresh ones for the stew, set a can of vegetable soup and add without diluting, when the meat has become tender.

Potato Boats — These are baked potatoes scooped out, mashed and returned to shell. But to the usual milk and seasoning add very finely chopped parsley and egg, which improves the flavor; sprinkle the top with melted butter and paprika.

Pretty Girls With ROSES GREET IMPERIAL SHRINE LEADER

Seattle, Wash., July 12. Greeted by pretty Seattle's prettiest young women, their arms laden with roses, Imperial Potentate Dr. Frederick R. Smith, of Rochester, N. Y., with his Imperial Divan, was the central figure in a huge ovation here today on the arrival of the Imperial Special to the forty-first Imperial Council meeting at the Shrine.

The program of the Shrine leader, head of the order, comprising more than 200,000 nobles, was a continuing triumph across the state. At the boundary between Idaho and Washington, the party was met by representatives of the Seattle temple, who bore the welcome of the governor of the state to the distinguished visitors.

More than fifty special trains have already reached Seattle, bearing Shriners to the big meeting, and the last train is expected tonight. In honor of the Imperial Divan, a huge reception was held this afternoon at the Imperial headquarters, and a light dinner will be given by Chairman J. B. Chilberg and Potentate J. A. Swallow, of Nile Temple, Seattle.

Household Hints

HOME-MADE DRINKS ARE HARMLESS AND COOLING

Home-Made Root Beer — Dissolve five cakes of dry yeast and three tablespoons of sugar in one pint of lukewarm water. Keep in a warm place for twelve hours, then stir well, strain through cheese cloth, discarding the meal left in cloth. Add two quarts of root beer extract, four pounds of sugar and five gallons of lukewarm water. Mix them thoroughly and bottle. Tie the bottle cork securely. Keep in warm place forty-eight hours, then cool and it is ready for use. Store bottles in a cool place.

Dandelion Cordial — One peck of dandelion blossoms, three pounds of sugar, three gallons boiling water. Then slice oranges, three lemons, one cake of compressed yeast. Crush fruit, cover with sugar, add spices put in stone jar, pour on boiling water, let stand six days in warm place, strain and return to jar, add orange juice, perfectly clarified, bottle. For elderberry cordial use elderberry blossoms.

Lemon Nectar — Six lemons, two oranges, one pound raisins, two sticks cinnamon, 15 cloves, one ounce sassafras, two gallons boiling water, two pounds rock candy. Slice lemons and oranges, add cinnamon and cloves, sassafras and rock candy, put in stone jar and let stand in cold place for one week, stirring daily, strain through several folds of cheese cloth and bottle for use.

Grape Nectar — One bottle grape juice, juice of one lemon, one orange, one cup brown sugar, one cup of pineapple. Pour over cracked ice. Serve with whipped cream and small onions.

Strawberry Syrup — Juice of six lemons, grated rind of three lemons, three pounds of white sugar, make a thick syrup. When cool, strain the juice into it, and squeeze as much juice from the grated rind as possible. A table-spoonful in a glass of water will make delicious drink on hot day.

Strawberry Punch — Juice of four quarts of berries, one crushed pineapple, two pints of sugar, juice of four lemons, one quart cracked ice, two quarts of charged water. Place three strawberries in each glass.

Pineapple Punch — Two grated pineapples, juice of six oranges, six lemons, three pounds of sugar boiled ten minutes to dissolve. Cool and pour over fruit. Add cracked ice.

Raspberry Shrub — Place raspberry juice, one jar, cover with cider vinegar, let stand overnight, strain and press. To one quart of juice add one quart of sugar, boil and bottle. Serve with cracked ice. All berries can be used for shrub in like manner, giving a delightful variety of refreshing summer drinks.

THE TABLE.

Berkshire Game — One-half cup corn meal, one-half cup flour, one-half cup cooked rice, two tablespoons sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, two-thirds cup scalded milk, one egg, one tablespoon melted butter, three teaspoons baking powder; turn milk on Whitewater, Wis., July 12. — The contract for construction of the new sewer system, including 36,000 feet of pipe and a disposal plant, is expected to be awarded this evening. It has been roughly estimated that the work will cost about 80 cents a foot, and the price of frontage has been fixed at 40 cents. The specifications call for completion of the work within a year.

The cartoon illustrates one of the great topics of the day among the thousands of business men who have taken up military training in the defense regiments. They are all men over forty who undergo daily a course of training extending over a hour or two and who are in many cases marvelling at the transformation thereby wrought in their figures.

Men who fought nature with nose, baths, diets and drugs in vain, now find that war drill has conquered the advancing waist line.

"Oh, it's you, Uncle Jim," called a buoyant voice. "Mr. Allison and I have found the most enchanting roadhouse in the world, and we're going to take dinner here. It's all right, isn't it?"

"Certainly," he replied, equally buoyant. "Enjoy yourself, Chubey," and he hung up the receiver.

"What is it?" asked Mrs. Davies, in a tone distinctly chill. She had a premonition that Jim Sargent had done something foolish. He seemed so pleased.

"Gail won't be home," he announced carelessly, starting for the stairs. "She's dining with Allison at some roadhouse."

"Unchaperoned!" gasped Mrs. Davies.

"She's all right, Helen," remarked Jim, starting upstairs. "Allison's a fine fellow."

"But what will he think of Gail?" protested Helen. "That sort of unconventional has gone clear out. Jim, you'll have to get back that number!"

"Sorry," regretted Jim. "Can't do it. Against the telephone rules," and he went upstairs, positively humming.

The two ladies looked at each other, and sat down in the valley of the shadows of gloom. There was nothing to be done!

It was not until nine o'clock that they expressed their worry again. At hour Ted and Lucile Teasdale and Arly Fosland came in with the exuberance of a New Year's eve celebration.

"It's great sleighing tonight," stated Lucile's husband, who was a thin-waisted young man, with a splendid natural gift for dancing.

"All that's missing is the bells," chattered the black-haired Arly, breaking straight for her favorite big couch in the library. "The only way to have any spend in an auto is to go sideways."

"We're to get up a skidding match, so I can bet on our chauffeur," laughed Lucile, fluffing her blonde ringlets before the big mirror in the hall. "We slid a complete circle coming down through the park, and never lost a revolution!"

"I've been thinking it must be bad driving," fretted Mrs. Sargent. "Gail should be home by now!"

"Allison's a safe driver," comforted Ted, who liked to see everybody happy.

Jim Sargent came to the door of the study, in which he was closeted with Rev. Smith Boyd. Jim was practically the young rector's business guardian.

"Hello, folks," he nodded. "Gail home?"

"Not yet," responded Mrs. Sargent, in whose brow the creases were becoming fixed.

"It's hardly time," estimated Jim, and went back into the study.

"I'm terribly vexed," confided Lucile, stopping behind Ted's chair, and idly tickling the back of his neck. "I bought it would be such a brilliant scheme to give a winter weekend party, but Mrs. Acton is going to give one at her country place."

"Before or after?" demanded Mrs. Davies, with whom this was a point of the utmost importance.

"A week after," answered Lucile, "but her invitations are out. I wish I hadn't mailed mine. What can we do to make ours notable?"

That being a matter worth considering, the entire party, with the exception of Aunt Grace, who was listening for the doorbell, set their wits and their tongues to work. Mrs. Helen Davies took a keener interest in it than any of them. The invitation list was the most important of all, for it was a long and arduous way to the heaven of the socially elect, and it took generations to accomplish the journey. The Murdock girls, Grace and herself, had no great-grandfather. Murdock Senior had made his money after Murdock Junior was married, but in time to give the girls a thorough polishing in an exclusive academy. Thus launched, Helen had married a man with a great-great-grandfather, but Grace had married Jim Sargent. Jim was a dear, and had plenty of money, and was as good a railroader as Grace's father, with whom he had been great chums; but still he was Jim Sargent. Gail's mother, who had married Jim's brother, had seven ancestors, but a mother's family name is so often overlooked. Nevertheless, when Gail came to marry, the maternal ancestry, all other things being favorable, might even secure her an invitation to Mrs. Waverly-Gaites' annual! Reaching this point in her circle of speculation, Mrs. Helen Davies came back to her starting place, and looked at the library clock with a shock. Ten; and the girl was not yet home!

Rev. Smith Boyd came out of the study with his most active vestryman,

"We've been buying a dog!" she breathlessly explained, and, opening her coat, she produced an animated teddy bear, with two black eyes and one black pointed nose protruding from a puff ball of pure white. She set it on the floor, where it waddled uncertainly in three directions, and finally curled down between Rev. Smith Boyd's feet.

"A collie!" and Rev. Smith Boyd picked up the warm infant for an admiring inspection. "It's a beautiful puppy."

"Isn't it a dear!" exclaimed Gail, taking it away from him, and favoring him with a smile. She whisked the fluffy little ball over to her Aunt Grace and left it in that lady's lap, while she drew off her furs.

"Where could you buy a dog at this hour?" inquired Mrs. Davies, glancing at the clock, which stood now at the accusing hour of a quarter of eleven.

"We woke up the kennel-men," laughed Gail, turning with a sparkling glance to Allison, who was being introduced ceremoniously to the ladies by Uncle Jim. "We had a perfectly glorious evening! We dined at Roseleaf Inn, entirely surrounded by hectic lights, then we drove five miles into the country and bought Flakes. We came home so fast that Mr. Allison almost had to hold me in." She turned, laughing, to find the eyes of Rev. Smith Boyd fixed on her in cold disapproval. They were no longer blue!

CHAPTER IV.

Too Many Men.

"A conscience must be a nuisance to a rector," sympathized Gail Sargent, as she walked up the hill beside Rev. Smith Boyd.

The tall young rector shifted the thin rope of the sled to his other hand.

"Epigrams are usually more clever than true," he finally responded, with a twinkle in his eyes. It had been in his mind to sharply defend that charge, but he reflected that it was unwise to assume the speech worth serious consideration. Moreover, he had come to this toboggan party for healthful physical exercise!

"Then you're guilty of an epigram," retorted Gail, who was annoyed with Rev. Smith Boyd without quite knowing why. "You can't believe all you are compelled, as a minister, to say."

"That," returned Rev. Smith Boyd coldly, "is a matter of interpretation." He commanded himself for his patience, as he proceeded to instruct this mistaken young person. She was a lovely girl, in spite of the many things he found in her of which to disapprove. "The eye of the needle through which the camel was supposed not to be able to pass, was, in reality, a narrow city gate called the Needle's Eye."

Gail looked at him with that little smile at the corners of her red lips, eyes down, curved lashes on her cheeks, and beneath the lashes a sparkle brighter than the moonlight on the snow crystals in the adjoining field.

"I'll help you," offered Rev. Smith Boyd, with a glow of pleasure in his particularly fine eyes. "I used to have a twelve-seated bob-sled, which never started down the hill with less than fifteen."

"I never rode on one," complained Arly. "I think I'm due for a bob-sled party."

"You're invited," Lucile promptly told her. "Uncle Jim, you and Doctor Boyd will have to hunt up your hammer and saw."

"I'll start right to work," offered the young rector, with the alacrity which had made him a favorite.

"If the snow holds, we'll go over into the Jersey hills, and slide," promised Gail with enthusiasm. "I'll give the party."

"I seem to anticipate a pleasant evening," considered Ted Teasdale, whose athletics were confined entirely to dancing. "We'll ride downhill on the sleds, and up hill in the machines."

"That's barred," immediately protested Jim. "The boys have to pull the girls uphill. Isn't that right, Boyd?"

"It was correct form when I was a boy," returned the rector, with a laugh. He held his muscular hands out before him as if he could still feel the cut of the rope in his palms. He squared his big shoulders, and breathed deeply, in memory of those health-giving days.

There was a flush in his cheeks, and his eyes, which were sometimes green, glowed with a decided blue. Arlene Fosland, looking lazily across at him, from the comfortable nest which she had not quitted all evening, decided that he had not heard before; and for that that it was a shame that he had been crammed into the ministry.

"There's Gail!" cried Mrs. Sargent, jumping to her feet and running into the hall, before the butler could come in answer to the bell. She opened the door and was immediately kissed, then Gail came back into the library without stopping to remove her furs. She was followed by Allison, and she carried something inside her coat. Her cheeks were rosy from the crisp air and the snow sparkled on her brown hair like tiny diamonds.

"We've been buying a dog!" she breathlessly explained, and, opening her coat, she produced an animated teddy bear, with two black eyes and one black pointed nose protruding from a puff ball of pure white. She set it on the floor, where it waddled uncertainly in three directions, and finally curled down between Rev. Smith Boyd's feet.

"A collie!" and Rev. Smith Boyd picked up the warm infant for an admiring inspection. "It's a beautiful puppy."

"Isn't it a dear!" exclaimed Gail, taking it away from him, and favoring him with a smile. She whisked the fluffy little ball over to her Aunt Grace and left it in that lady's lap, while she drew off her furs.

"Where could you buy a dog at this hour?" inquired Mrs. Davies, glancing at the clock, which stood now at the accusing hour of a quarter of eleven.

"We woke up the kennel-men," laughed Gail, turning with a sparkling glance to Allison, who was being introduced ceremoniously to the ladies by Uncle Jim. "We had a perfectly glorious evening! We dined at Roseleaf Inn, entirely surrounded by hectic lights, then we drove five miles into the country and bought Flakes. We came home so fast that Mr. Allison almost had to hold me in." She turned, laughing, to find the eyes of Rev. Smith Boyd fixed on her in cold disapproval. They were no longer blue!

that instant these two, between whom there had seemed some instinctive antagonism, were nearer in sympathy than either had thought possible to be. Then Rev. Smith Boyd happened to remember something. "The morality or immorality of riches depends upon its use," he sonorously stated, as he stepped out into the road again, dragging his sled behind him, following the noisy, loitering crowd with the number two bobbed. "Market Square church, which is the one I suppose you meant in your comparison with the rich man, intends to devote all the means with which a kind Providence has blessed it, to the glory of God."

"And the glorification of the billionnaire vestry," she added, still annoyed with Rev. Smith Boyd, though she did not know why.

Again Rev. Smith Boyd drew her out of the road, almost urgently, and unnecessarily in advance of need, to permit a thick man to glide leisurely by on his stomach on a hand-sled. He slid majestically onward, with happy forgetfulness of the dignity belonging to the president of the Towanda Valley railroad and a vestryman of Market Square church.

"That used to be lots of fun," remembered Gail, looking after her Uncle Jim in envy.

"Market Square church has dispensed millions in charity," the rector felt it his duty to inform her, as they started up the hill again.

"If it's like our church at home it costs ninety cents to deliver a dime."

she retorted, bristling anew with by-gone aggravations. "So long as you can deliver baskets of provisions in person, it is all right, but the minute you let the money out of your sight it filters through too many paid hands. I found this out just before I resigned from our charity committee."

He looked at her in perplexity. She was so young and so pretty, so charming in the ermine which framed her pink face, so gentle of speech and movement, that her visible soft and her incisive mind seemed to be two different creatures.

"Why are you so bitter against the church?" and his tone was troubled, not so much about what she had said, but about her.

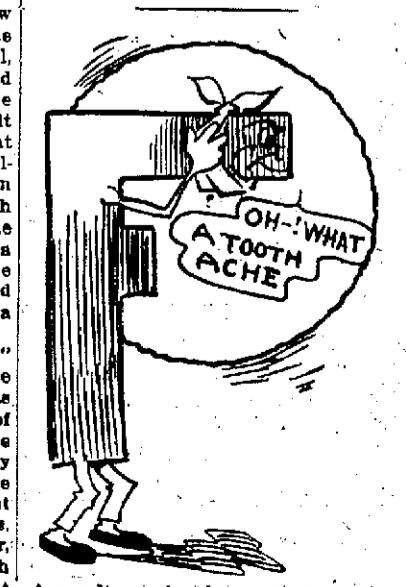

"I didn't know I was," she confessed, concerned about it herself. "All at once I seem to look on it as an old show which should be cast aside. It is so elaborate to do so little good in the world. Morality is on the increase, as any page of history will show."

SIZE OF BRICK REGULATED

Any Change From Standard Would Be Attended by Considerable Inconvenience to Builders.

If bricks were made larger it would save a great deal of time and labor in building, said a contractor, but the standard has been set and any change would be attended by considerable inconvenience. In England when bricks were first made up to sixty or seventy years ago there was a tax on bricks, and in order to evade it the bricks were made of larger and larger sizes.

These were used for cellars and other concealed places. To stop this fraud an act was passed in the reign of George III, fixing the legal size of bricks. Early in Queen Victoria's reign the tax was taken off and bricks may now be legally made of any size, whatever. But any change from the standard size would bring about great inconvenience. All calculations are made for building on this standard size, and the London and other building acts have practically fixed it.

Clearly, either North America was peopled from Asia or else Asia was peopled from North America. There is absolutely no direct evidence to show which continent peopled the other.

UNABLE TO FIND HOW ROBERTSON GOT SAWs

BELOIT PRISONER SHOWS MOST DARING IN JAIL DELIVERY ATTEMPT SATURDAY.

CLOSE WATCH IS KEPT

Wife, Who Was Suspected, Denied Smuggling Saw Blades Into Jail In Visit.—Prisoner Threatens Suicide.

Following his daring attempt to saw out of the Rock county jail and his three companions suicide, Henry H. Robertson, the Beloit man who faces state's prison on the charge of murder, was closely watched by the county jail authorities and has been kept in solitary confinement since Saturday. So sincere was Robertson in his threat to take his life because of the shame brought upon his family, that when his lines were taken from him, including his stockings and belt, with which the desperate prisoner might attempt to hang himself.

The effort of Robertson to escape jail Saturday was more daring than that of Eddie Fay, who escaped from the same structure in the most sensational jail delivery in southern Wisconsin, in the summer of 1912. Equipped with only two buckskin blades, Robertson had sawed through one three-quarter inch bar, broken one end of it after sawing part way through. This was done on Friday night, and jail authorities admitted that he tried for several hours to escape out of this small hole, which is exactly four and three-quarters inches wide and fifteen inches high. His shoulders were too broad and Saturday morning, when the corridor was opened again, Robertson had opportunity of working on the outside. He had completed severing the lower end of the bar and was half through the upper end when his plot to escape was nipped by Sheriff Chamberlain.

Found By Chance.

Sheriff Chamberlain was taking a party of Beloit visitors on an inspection trip through the lower tier of cells, and at the south window noticed that Robertson was acting nervous. This act drew his attention to the window, where there was a shirt tied on both the inside and outside covering up the sawed hole.

"What are you doing, drying your washing?" suspiciously inquired the sheriff.

"Yes, and to get the odor out of them," replied Robertson.

He being satisfied with the answer, the shirt was made a quick grab for the garments and on pulling them down found one of the bars still in place with the lower end resting on the horizontal piece. The bar came loose, and closer inspection showed that ten minutes' more work with the sharp edge would have enabled the prisoner to break the remaining bar, which would have given him freedom. The window is but a few feet from the ground, facing the river, and it is evident that Robertson planned to make his break for liberty Saturday night just before the corridor was closed to the prisoners.

Four in Cell Room.

There were four other prisoners in the corridor on Friday night, Edward Krahmer under three years' suspended sentence for robbery, D. C. Fonger, a drunk; Horace Burton, waiting trial for wife, deceased, at Beloit, and Andrew Nelson, a drunk. Three of them were in the cell Saturday morning, and every one denied any knowledge that Robertson attempted to escape Friday night or worked in sawing the bars Saturday morning. All declared they knew nothing about Robertson's attempt at jail delivery, but as they were given the same corridor freedom as Robertson, this is not believed by the count-ty jail authorities. Friday night the corridor was locked at nine o'clock, and it is impossible that Robertson could have worked on the bars down from that time until seven o'clock the next morning, when the inner cells were opened at breakfast time. If Robertson attempted to escape Friday night, as he says, it must have been before nine o'clock in the evening, before the discovery was made. Robertson was taken upstairs to the cell room from which Eddie Fay escaped and he was undressed. Every inch of his clothes was searched and Turnkey Wogan found a ten-inch hacksaw that was broken into two pieces, hidden in his stocking, and a razor blade in his shirt. The most of his clothes were torn from his body and he was placed behind the locks in a room in a bunk from which even the blankets were taken.

Threatens Suicide.

Robertson talked freely shortly after the discovery. He declared that he intended going from the jail Saturday night, taking his life. "Beloit I would have gone to my home, said my wife, and on Sunday morning I would have ended it all. They've got it on me, and the idea of going to prison when I have a wife and ten year old son to take the greater bulk of my mishonor, drove me to despair. If had ever got through these bars, they would never have taken me back alive," said Robertson.

The jail authorities razed out his threat, and the other inmates of the cell room reported that Robertson was uneasy all Friday night, and the next morning when they found an empty razor case in the man's shirt, they held a conference to inform Sheriff Chamberlain that Robertson was contemplating suicide.

Robertson was arrested in Monroe, Tennessee, some weeks ago, after he had evaded the Beloit officers in escaping from the Line City after it is alleged he forged a check for $34.50 on Charles Merriman, and it is also said on one other Beloit man, but this has not been corroborated with him during the court proceedings. He declares that he was drunk before committing the act, and although a plea of not guilty was entered for him, Robertson told the county jail authorities that he wanted to plead guilty and get it over with, hoping to receive a short sentence. Being over in the county jail and subject to his own thoughts, he became disconsolate for as far as could be learned his case is his first offense in criminal matters. At the time of the cashing of the alleged forged check posters were sent out by the police department with Robertson's description, and the case attracted wide publicity. The prisoner declared that he got himself up at Memphis, Tennessee, and when he was sobered up and realized the mistake, but it is also said from Beloit officers that Robertson was captured there on being traced through his wife.

Saws a Mystery.

Sheriff Chamberlain, to date, has been unable to fathom the puzzle where Robertson obtained the saw blades. His wife visited him last Thursday afternoon for some time, and it was at first believed she smuggled the blades to him. Sunday afternoon she visited the jail and the county jail authorities put her through a close questioning and she professed ignorance of her husband's plan to escape. It is also barely possible that other prisoners, who return at all hours to the cells and are not thoroughly searched, might have supplied the saws to Robertson.

The prisoner is forty-three years of age and is of a very hulky appearance, weighing over a hundred and eighty pounds.

ROUGH HOUSE' BURNS TELLS OF BATTLES OF BY-GONE DAYS

Former Weltweit Title-holder Reviews Ring Experience While on Short Stay Here.

"In my estimation, Kid Levine was the greatest lightweight boxer in the world. In his prime he could have knocked out a fighting combination, composed of Charley White, Freddie Welsh, Willie Ritchie and many other lightweight boxers, who have headed that class since his time." These were the words of Charley, better known as "Rough House" Burns, former lightweight champion of the world, while reviewing his fighting experience during his short stay in Janesville, as manager of the Yandeevee act. Yuma, the man of mystery, which was presented at a local theatre, during the past week.

During the course of the talk, Burns became quite excited and many times, in describing some of his greater battles, would jump from his chair and rush to the middle of the floor, fighting the imagination, attacking, and then shadowing back to his corner.

His ring idol he wished to make plain was "Kid" Levine, at one time lightweight champion of the world.

Burns started his career in Cincinnati, where he was born and raised to a boy of sixteen. His favorite sport was baseball and those were the days when the national game was somewhat rough. The lighter tells of how he was forced many times to wield a bat in order to uphold his rights or the rights of his team on the diamond. It was every fellow for himself and black eyes and bloody noses were common outcomes of a home game of ball. It was here that Burns received his first taste of real fight.

In the days when "Buck" Ewing was managing the New York baseball club and Day was the owner of that organization, Burns, yet a lad of sixteen, went to the big matinees to see a prize fight. The fight was to be between Sweeper and Aikens. As he sat in the audience with his mother, when "Buck" Ewing, the referee announced that one of the principals had failed to show up, after giving the gladiator in the ring a "once over," Burns turned to Ewing and said, "Buck, I can lick the fellow." "Do you think you can, Charley?" replied the manager. It was decided that he was to have the chance and after a few arrangements had been made the two fighters made their way into an insignificant town in Missouri and for a purse of $650, battled six rounds. The fight was a fierce one and Charley came out on top. "With $650 in my pocket, I thought I owned the world, and there was the starting point in my ring career."

From the early "eighties" up until 1897, "Rough House" Burns fought his way to the top. Although the welterweight class is not the most popular division of the fighting world today, in that time there were no welter, nor harder fighters than in the welterweight division. "There were about seventeen fighters in the class at that time and every one of them were hard boys, too," said the old gladiator. "Among them were men like McHews, Viegler, 'Mysterious' Bill Smith, Joe Walcott, Frank McConnell and Jack Everhard."

In the spring of 1897, Charley Burns fought Ziegler for the world championship, welterweight title in Philadelphia. It was a hard battle, in which the Cincinnati boy came out on top after six rounds. He held onto the belt for seven years and during that time he fought some of his hardest picocles, fights, in an effort to hold the title, which he had worked so hard for, and which he so well deserved. It was during this time that he fought the invincible Charlie Johnson, at Wheeling, West Virginia.

The prisoner is forty-three years of age and is of a very hulky appearance, weighing over a hundred and eighty pounds.

Istria Has Reminiscences Of Former Civilizations

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, D. C., July 12.—"Many long-suffering memories have been quickened by the present resistless flood of war that has engulfed in its course nearly all of the historic spots in Europe, recalling to the breathless onlookers in neutral lands, in the light of the tragic significance of these places today, their romantic stories of centuries past," begins a bulletin issued recently by the National Geographic Society, treating of what life has been in Austria's Italian territory, which the Italians are now attempting to invade. The statement continues:

"Istria, the wedge-shaped peninsula at the head of the Adriatic and the surrounding territory back of Triest, of great importance commercially, and agriculturally, and with few connections with the world to the West, thus little known and spoken of, has a stream of highly interesting reminiscences of past civilizations, when brought to our attention as one of today's great battlefields. In the light of events that have occurred there, takes a higher place in our consideration, all us with a deeper interest in the history of art is now being made upon its borders, and, later, may be made within them."

"The civilization of the peninsula is ancient, Ionians from rich and cultured Milesians settled colonies there in the ninth century B. C. and, in 735 B. C., the Corinthians followed them. The sunny culture of the Greeks once flourished all along these shores, formed its artists here, built their temples, and as far as gave way before the Celts, who arrived about the fourth century B. C. When the Romans were forced to crush the pirates of the North Adriatic, Istria fell under their domination, about 177 B. C. Following an uprising, the Romans thoroughly subdued the land in 123 B. C. and, in 127 B. C. 14,000 Roman colonists were settled there.

"Through the Dark Ages and well into the Middle Ages, Istrian land was land in the vortex of the struggle between the empires of the East and West, and, then, between Byzantium, the German powers of the North and the rising commercial cities of Italy. By 1145, Venice had established privileged connections with most of the Italian towns. From this time date some very interesting records of social organization on the peninsula.

"The land was organized into communes, with their chief magistrate, a small council, or council of assessors and a council of the people. The commune government extended their work to an even greater degree than the most governed states would think of going today. Their regulations provided for all manner of domestic supervision. They fixed the time of wine, the time for selling new wine, the amount of bread that could be baked in one oven, and administered 'pure food' regulations with greatest strictness."

"As today, judges went through the taverns and tasted the wine before the innkeepers might put it on sale. The prices of foreign goods were fixed by the authorities, and the quality of these goods carefully determined before they could be put on sale. Stone measurements were cut to four parts on the foundation stones of public buildings and on other conspicuous places. Any one who was not allowed to enter the cities, in regulation against carrying weapons being deemed just as important then as now. However, a citizen soldier who happened to kill an onlooker during military practice was able to get off with a light punishment. Military

"In some of the cities, the taking of false money was punishable with death; the bearing of false witness where no fine was collected, was punished by the loss of the right hand, and a long list of illegal words, oaths and obscenities, phrases was attached to the section of the code that provided the punishment of the pillory for the blasphemer. These were strictly forbidden; the workman was forced to accept no more than the wage prescribed. The activity of those entrusted with looking out for the people's welfare stretched to every little detail of domestic life."

MONROE MAN RAISES SKUNKS FOR THE SKINS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Monroe, Wis., July 12.—Fred Disbrow, who resides at Chileno, is probably the only proprietor of a skunk farm in the state of Wisconsin. He promises to develop a very profitable industry. At the present time Mr. Disbrow has fifteen old animals and ninety young. The young ones are now about the size of a full grown rat. They are fed oats, cornmeal, shorts, chopped feed, milk and rat-baeks. They are being raised for their hides, the same being worth from $2.50 to $4 each, according to their markings.

Making a Hit.

An advertisement of a recent sale ran thus: "The choice collection of bric-a-brac offered for sale is so unusual that it may safely be said each piece in it is calculated to create a sensation among people of artistic sense. Immediately on entering the room the visitor's eye will be struck by a carved walking stick of great weight and beauty."—Christian Register.

LORD NORBY PROVES HE IS A REAL "MAN"

Peer Becomes One of the Most Popular Recruits in the English Banks.

London, July 12.—One of the latest and most popular recruits in the ranks of those who are "doing something" for their country during the war has appeared in the person of Lord Norbury, now turned the fifty years of age, who has undertaken his self-imposed task recently in the fitting shop of an aeroplane works situated in a coarse blue calico smock and cloth cap. Nearby the works in a small lodge occupied by a butler, Lord Norbury has engaged a little simple-furnished bedroom and is doing his own valeting. The butler says His Lordship is paying workmen's rates and is taking his meals with the other workmen in the general canteen. His Lordship had put in a few hours work and was sitting with the after-breakfast crowd in the canteen before being recognized by a blue-suited laborer who then came over and spoke to him—"How do you do old chap, glad to meet you," said the workman putting out his hand which the Peer cordially shook. Another workman was heard to remark "I never seen a good enough and we will put him flying a thing or two if he only shows half an eye."

At the close of his day's work—6 A. M. to 6 P. M. Lord Norbury seemed well content with his first efforts as a laborer. "Things are turning out 'top hole,' he said. "It is very enjoyable and there is something noble in all manual work. I am not at all fatigued; I am used to hard work and do not feel a bit tired. The other fellows are all quite 'nally' and ready to do a good turn any moment." Lord Norbury's work was well approved by the old hands at the works. "He is pretty handy," they said. "He will be all right before long; you don't want to tell him a thing twice, and he is quite a sport too. 'Nobby' is the nickname for his Lordship among his fellow workmen.

Lord Norbury is to be given an ordinary workman, expecting and receiving his preferred treatment. Asked if he could be allowed to live on his wages, he replied, "Rather! I hope to save. Why I am not a rich man shortly—with 54 hours a week overtime, and bonus."

"No leisure time," he said laughing. "Just bed and work." Yes, I am happy to be doing something," said his Lordship, however, small and negligible is the way the subject's duty is that the nation's and if there is one supreme and urgent necessity it is that every man, woman and child should bend all efforts to the only great task—the subjugation and conquest of our enemy. By all means let us have a national register; let us have universal service; but do let us have something quickly, at once, something chosen advisedly and not haphazardly—something, in fine, for all."

Miss Kathleen Calkins, who is attending summer school at Madison, spent Saturday and Sunday with her parents.

R. E. Gavey attended the funeral of Mr. Will Lamont at Oregon, the latter part of last week.

Harley Smith of Madison is spending a few days with his father, Will Smith in this city.
